

101 words

101 words....

That's where it started off

That's all it took for his eyes to be opened

To be opened by my faded heart

A person who couldn't express themselves with the words they say, but I managed to do it anyway

It took 101 words for him to be consumed by my love..

For him to believe that every word I said was true

Every letter I wrote was imbedded in his mind like his favorite book

Then he realized that someone could actually love him

He knew I was the only one he thought of for many years

The only one he allowed to love him

Even though he knew love came with many consequences, he never wanted to give up

He knew that all he needed was love

MY love was all he wanted

So my "101 words"

Was all it took...